

Jackson man dies of injuries from accident

Twelve persons were injured in six traffic accidents in the Bootheel area Thursday, the highway patrol reported today. The death of a Jackson man Thursday from injuries received in an earlier accident brings the number of fatalities in the Southeast Missouri patrol area this year to 107, compared with 125 deaths at the same time last year.

Alvia S. Hahn, 54, of Jackson died at 10 a.m. Thursday in Perry County Hospital at Perryville of injuries received Saturday in an accident on Route B two miles north of Biehle. Hahn's car ran off the road and struck a tree.

The body was taken to Cracraft-Miller Funeral Home in Jackson.

Three persons were injured at 7:45 a.m. Thursday .6 mile south of Clarkton on Highway 25 when a car driven south by Tommy Battles, 55, of Clarkton attempted to make a left turn and pulled into the path of a northbound car driven by Wanda Harper, 45, of Pontiac, Mich.

Mrs. Harper received bruises and scratches. Injured in the Battles auto were Imogene Battles, 45, of Clarkton, who received facial cuts and leg bruises; and Anice Starke, 64, of Clarkton, who suffered a broken collar bone. They were taken to Dunklin County Memorial Hospital in Kennett.

Two tractor-trailer trucks collided at 5:15 p.m. on Highway 61 seven miles south of Hayti when Kenneth Lee Clemons, 27, of Lebanon, Ind., lost control of his northbound truck which jackknifed into the path of a truck driven south by Louis Washington, 48, of Houston, Tex., knocking the cab loose from the trailer of the Washington vehicle.

Clemons received a broken kneecap and was taken to Pemiscot County Memorial Hospital in Hayti.

Estle Rodgers, 66, of Moreshouse received minor injuries at 12:10 p.m. four miles east of Vanduser on Route Z when she lost control of her car which ran off the road and struck a tree.

She and a passenger, Flora Crouch, 50, of Canalou, who also received minor injuries, were taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston.

A one-car accident at 2:45 p.m. on Interstate 55 one mile south of Hayti resulted in bruises and scratches to Myrtle Hargis, 23, of Independence.

Mrs. Hargis lost control of her car in heavy rain, ran off the road and rolled down an embankment. She was taken to Pemiscot County Memorial Hospital.

Thomas H. Story, 21, of Charleston received a left eye injury at 6:15 p.m. on Highway 62 three miles east of Bertrand when he lost control of his car which struck a utility pole. He was taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston.

Missourians feel impact of new laws

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Today Missourians will begin feeling the impact of new laws approved by the legislature this year.

If you want to vote, you must be registered, no matter where you live. Last year, the secretary of state's office reports, 400,000 persons voted in Missouri without being registered.

If you're a public official, you must conduct most of the public's business in public. But the new open meetings law allows secret meetings under certain circumstances.

You can cancel an agreement made with a door-to-door sales man within three days of the sale and get your money back.

If you are a doctor or nurse, you can't be punished for refusing to participate in an abortion.

If you're a state prison inmate, you can expect a raise for prison industry work because the $1 per day limit has been removed.

Missourians also can celebrate the late Harry S. Truman's birthday next May 8 as a state holiday. Veterans Day has been restored to Nov. 11 instead of the fourth Monday in October.

Of the 223 bills approved by the legislature, all but 14 were signed by the governor. Most become law today.

Others will take effect Jan. 1. Some will become law next July 1, and still others were deemed emergencies and became law several months ago when the governor signed them. A half-cent sales tax for transportation has been put into effect in St. Louis and extended in Kansas City. That bill was an emergency measure to bail out the financially troubled Bi-State Transit System in St. Louis.

Still other bills were written so that state agencies can start preparing for the law but the key issues won't go into effect for a year.

An example of this is a special education bill, which requires the Education Department to begin a census — now under way — to find out where the mentally and physically handicapped youngsters are so that officials will know how much the program will cost.

The law gives the Education Department open-ended authority to insure that each child in the state has classroom instruction or instruction by a certified teacher available to him or her.

Persons over 65 who earn less than $7,500 a year will get a bonus next spring when they file out their state tax returns.

If the property tax bill is greater than 4 per cent of the income, the difference can be deducted in the state income tax. But the full property tax bill must be paid. For renters, 18 per cent of the year's total rent is treated as a property tax bill.

A bill important to homeowners will go into effect Dec. 31, 1974. It will require that all property be assessed at 33 1/3 per cent of true value. The Constitution allows assessment up to 100 per cent but the state Tax Commission has set the rate at 30 per cent.

A sweeping set of regulations on ambulance services goes into effect next July 1 and several rural area legislators are talking about repealing the law because rural funeral homes may be forced out of the ambulance business.

A bill setting up standards for mobile homes and requiring all mobile homes and house trailers to be tied down will go into effect Jan. 1.

A bill making it easier to obtain a divorce also becomes law Jan. 1 a key section of the bill says that neither party shall be found at fault if one party says the marriage is irretrievably broken and the spouse doesn't argue the point. The new law still would allow contested divorce suits.

Arousing controversy on the eve of their effective date have been the open meetings bill and the voter registration measure.

Because of an amendment defining a legal voter as a registered voter, legislators and the secretary of state believe all petition signers must be registered. The governor and attorney general disagree and the Missouri Citizens Conservation Committee has filed a suit seeking a judgment one way or the other.

Petition laws say legal voters must sign petitions. A 1920 Supreme Court decision said persons don't have to be registered to sign petitions.

The conservation group wants to circulate petitions calling for a constitutional amendment allowing a tax on soft drink bottles to raise money to allow the state Conservation Department to buy land to preserve from development.

The bill extends mandatory voter registration throughout the state and is expected to add 400,000 persons to the registration lists.

Scouts receive more land for campground

The Southeast Missouri Council of Boy Scouts of America was presented a contract for a lease on 60 acres of land at Lake Wappapello by representatives of the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers at the monthly meeting of the executive board Thursday night at Two-Tony's Smorgasbord.

The contract was presented to Dr. Mark Scully of Cape Girardeau, president of the council, and T. A. Brown Jr. of Kennett, immediate past council president, by Tom Simpkins of Memphis, Tenn., chief of management and disposal branch of real estate division in the Memphis district of the Army Corps of Engineers. Also representing the Corps of Engineers in the presentation were Paul Geer of Vicksburg, Miss., chief of the real estate management and disposal branch of the lower Mississippi Valley Division, Army Corps of Engineers, and Billy J. Wright of Memphis, assistant to Simpkins.

The land is located in the Blue Springs area of Lake Wappapello and is to be used for a weekend camp and canoe base by Boy Scouts throughout the 14-county SeMo council area. Development of the property is to begin in the near future.

The tract will double the area available for Boy Scout camping.

The property was obtained on a 25-year lease agreement with the option to renew. The cost of the lease was $1 for the 25 years and this was paid by Simpkins, who is a native of Oran and has been active in scouting for many years. Geer has also been active in scouting for a long time.

Both were presented plaques in appreciation for helping the council obtain the lease.

Pat Lea of Sikeston was inducted as a new member of the council executive board at Thursday night's meeting.

long. The route will begin at Malone Park, then racers will move west on West North Street to Davis Blvd., north of Davis to Salcedo Road, west on Salcedo to Euclid Avenue, south on Euclid to Linda Street, east on Linda to Northwest Street, north on Northwest to Salcedo Road, east on Salcedo to Davis Boulevard and south on Davis Boulevard and back to the park.

Winners in each of four divisions will receive trophies or certificates.

There will be two classes in a men's division and two in a women's division. Thirteen-year-olds and younger will compete together. In a separate class will be 14-year-olds and older.

RUNAWAY CHILDREN

Running away from home has long been a part of America's folklore. For many young persons, it has served as part of their rite of passage into adulthood. Unlike Tom Sawyer and Huckleberry Finn, however, today's runaway is not, typically, in search of fun and adventure. Instead, he is escaping from serious problems at home, at school, or within himself. But instead of finding a haven from his problems at home, the runaway often finds himself the victim of street gangs, drug pushers and hardened criminals. "The runaway is a strong potential candidate for juvenile delinquency and a life of adult crime," Sen. Birch Bayh (D Ind.) last year told a Senate subcommittee investigating juvenile delinquency. "If we help the runaway deal with the problems that caused him to run, we can prevent many runaways from becoming truly delinquent."

Sen. Bayh was the chief sponsor of the Runaway Youth Act which would provide federal assistance to shelters that temporarily house and aid runaways. The act, which was passed by the Senate on June 8, 1973, also authorizes funds to conduct research on the scope of the runaway problem in this country, particularly with regard to data on the types of children who run away. The House Subcommittee on Equal Opportunities is scheduled to begin hearings on similar legislation on Tuesday, Oct. 2.

Congressional interest in the problem of missing youths increased after the discovery in mid-August of the mass murders of more than two-dozen boys -- many of whom were runaways -- in Houston. The 1972 report of the Senate Juvenile Delinquency Subcommittee estimated that as many as one million children run away each year. Surprisingly, more than half of all runaways are girls. The average age for fleeing youths is now 15, but the prevalence of younger runaways is increasing. In New York City, 43 per cent of recent runaways were found to be between the ages of 11 and 14.

Although runaway juveniles are a social and family problem, the main burden of dealing with them has fallen on the police. More than 265,000 persons under 18 were arrested in 1972 for being runaways. Many law enforcement officials back the move to decriminalize the act of running away from home. "Traditional law enforcement approaches obviously are not working when it comes to dealing with runaways" said John Wedemeyer, a former welfare official in San Diego who set up runaways, said John Wedemeyer, a former welfare official in San Diego who set up runaway centers there (New York Times, Sept. 3, 1973). "The police and probation officers do not have the skills to deal effectively with them. Nor do they have the manpower or the time." But other law officers wonder if removing police controls over runaways and setting up more homes for them will encourage even more youths to run away from home.

It will cost more to pay the interest on National debt in 1974 than it cost to run the government from 1798 to 1913.

The trouble with tact is, you are apt to catch people using it.

NEW YORK (AP) — Thirty years isn't much in the life of a mountain or a Methuselah, but it is quite a chunk out of the span of an ordinary man.

After three decades of doing anything, he is likely to want to pause for a deep breath, and review what he has accomplished.

That's the landmark peak — or is it a rutted ravine? — where I stand right now. I have been writing a newspaper column for 30 years this month. Leaning upon my hoe for a moment in this prose vineyard, I try to see what all this tilling has amounted to.

Judging it purely in terms of quantity, it isn't unimpressive. The more than 7,600 columns I have written in the last 30 years total almost four million words, slightly more than four times the life output of William Shakespeare.

I do not mean by this comparison to belittle the Bard. Touch typing might not have helped his style at all.

What I would rather ponder is what effect my four million words have had upon the human race. In sum, I am afraid, very little.

I haven't freed mankind noticeably of its ancient sins — war, greed, poverty and ingratitude — nor, on the other hand, have I been able to introduce mankind to a new form of innocent pleasure, particularly one that would cheer the lot of the middle-aged and the elderly.

Of course, this failure isn't altogether my fault. I can say with some justification that if mankind had simply heeded my advice, it would be in a helluva sight better shape than it is now. But who can get anybody's ear today with sound advice? Neither scolding columnists nor scolding parents. The public is but a vaster child.

In fairness to myself, however, I would like to point out a few of my achievements that have not been entirely overlooked. Did I not defend motherhood when others were blaming it for the population explosion? Was I not endlessly industrious in pointing out the continuing menace of poisonous snakes? When others were jeering women's liberation, was I not foremost in proclaiming the right of ladies to smoke cigars in public?

Brief be those withered laurels on my brow, I claim them as my own.

Although it is hard to catalogue what I accomplished in 30 years at the typewriter, it is much easier to list what those years did to me.

First, they robbed me of four-fifths of my hair and three-fourths of my teeth.

Second, they enlarged my hatred of ignorance, stupidity, falsehood and aimless malice.

Third, they eradicated my juvenile cynicism and replaced it with an abiding faith in the worth of most people.

Fourth, they flowered my heart with wonder at all the wounded and wonderful things that happen in this wonderful but wounded world.

All in all, writing a column for 30 years is pretty much like shoveling coal in hell: the most you can hope for is to make everybody feel just a little bit warmer.

HYPOTHESIS SHOT DOWN

Lawyers have a homey rule that Nixon must know: If you have the law on your side, argue the law; if you have the facts, argue the facts; if you have neither, pound the table. Nixon's lawyers have taken to "pounding the table" with "hypotheses" such as that offered to the Ervin committee by special counsel J. Fred Buzhardt, which said: John Dean and John Mitchell did the bad things.

By labeling the Buzhardt memo a "hypothesis," the White House was trying to tell us that it likes to market-test hypotheses before embracing them. Someone at the White House must have said, "Let's run this hypothesis up the flagpole and see if anyone goes 'yechh!'" Lots of people did, so down came the hypothesis. Now what?

Now Melvin Laird has weighed in with the observation that the nation cannot afford to be distracted by Watergate. The last time Laird delivered himself of an opinion on the subject (before he was a Nixon employee) he said he did not want to know anything nasty about the President and Watergate. Obviously someone is trying to distract someone from something.

Apparently Nixon is stalling so he can tailor his next definitive Watergate statement to the as yet uncertain terrain that will emerge from the testimony of his first batch of employees. He still is concerned with what he needs to say, not with what he ought to say; with what he can get away with, not with what is true.

"INNOCENCE
BY ASSOCIATION"

At this point there probably is no way to hold Nixon's feet to the fires that he and his first batch of employees lit.

Certainly it does no good firing editorial apostrophes across the bow of his ship of fools: The captain is incommunicado, he doesn't read newspapers, and he won't watch television until the Ohio State-Michigan game.

But he should be told that every day he remains silent builds a momentum for disbelieving his next "hypothesis."

And Laird, who does read newspapers, should be told that it will not do for him or his employer to distract us from Watergate by reminding us that Leonid Brezhnev likes Nixon, and that Nixon got the POWs home.

When Alger Hiss was being evasive he bragged that "I too have had a not insignificant role in the magnificent achievements of our nation in recent times" and said that his friends included senators and Eleanor Roosevelt.

Congressman Nixon tartly (and rightly) dismissed Hiss's bragging as "innocence by association."

-Des Moines Register

When you're buying shoes this fall, will you put your feet first, or will you insist on trying to shape your feet to the fashions, rather than choosing fashions shaped for your feet?

According to Research Director Marion Wells of American Physical Fitness Research Institute, shoe styles are "de-feeting" us in much the same way as centuries of Chinese women were crippled by the custom of foot binding. The nation that spends billions of dollars on shoes and boots annually also has over 31 million foot ailments treated by podiatrists in one year and "footed the bill" for $93-million worth of medicine and machinery to soothe aching feet.

To stay a step ahead in foot care, consider the purpose for which you are buying shoes. According to the Women's Bureau of the United States Department of Labor: "The shoes women wear at work have a greater effect on their comfort, safety, and efficiency than any other item of clothing."

To make your working day more comfortable, foot specialists suggest favoring shoes with low, broad heels, pliable uppers (unless they're safety shoes) and a shank of steel between the insole and the outsole to take the shock of your body's weight. The shank may be rigid or flexible, depending on the function of the footwear.

"Buy by fit, not by size," says Dr. Albert Apkarian, foot specialist and President of the American Board of Foot Surgeons. Insist that your feet be measured with every purchase, and have it done standing as well as sitting. Measurement should be from the ball to the heel. If the shoes fit properly, the ball of your foot should be at the break of the shoe.

And last but not least, please listen to your local shoe merchant when he advises you on the size as well as the style for your foot comfort.

REAFFIRMATION

Recently, in the name of "protecting" the consumer, state lawmakers -- this time in California -- were asked once again to consider a proposal to regulate that old form of promotion, trading stamps. Merchants were to be compelled to give customers a cash discount if requested instead of stamps. Advocates of the proposal claimed the stamps added to food prices and were "unproductive, unnecessary and increasingly unwanted."

Like virtually all such proposals, this one was defeated. But, as so often before, the debate over the measure revealed the odd presumption of some lawmakers that government knows best what is good for consumers. Even though, as in the California instance, the truth is brought out that "there is an absolute freedom of choice as far as the consumer is concerned." In other words, if consumers wish to do so they can go to places of business with promotional policies that forego the giving of trading stamps. And the fact that a majority of consumers in the United States favor trading stamps as a unique form of saving, and that millions of merchants find them productive as a business getter explodes the myth that trading stamps are uneconomic and a

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: Freidin May Have Faked His Reports to Chotiner

WASHINGTON-- The possibility has now been raised that the celebrated political spy, Seymour Freidin, may have submitted false reports to the White House.

We have obtained copies of his colorful, confidential spy reports. One of the most sizzling passages, for example, recounts what the late President Lyndon Johnson was supposed to have told to the as yet uncertain terrain Newsweek columnist Ken Crawford off-the-record on June 18, 1971.

Freidin quotes LBJ as swearing "to do everything I possibly can" behind the scenes to defeat Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., and "the b---ies, the creeps and all their b--- friends" associated with him.

"They hate me; they always have," LBJ supposedly said. He vowed not to attend the Democratic convention, Freidin reported, because the McGovernites had "rigged" convention procedures. "It won't be a convention," LBJ supposedly growled. "It will be a g-d--- zoo."

"EVERYTHING I CAN"

His refusal to attend, he was quoted as saying, "won't bother the b---s. What will bother them is what they won't really know. I'm going to do everything I possibly can to beat the dirty, rotten SOB's in 1972. You can bet on that."

He referred to McGovern personally, according to the spy report, as "that silly SOB" and warned that the "b---s are trying to kill the country; they don't give a damn. We have to find a common, unifying way to beat their heads to a pulp."

Crawford acknowledged that he had spoken to the late President on the phone and may have discussed the conversation with Freidin afterward at lunch. But Freidin's account, swore Crawford, was "made out of whole cloth."

Later, Freidin reported to the White House that the McGovern crowd suspected Lyndon Johnson was working secretly against them even after they made a pilgrimage to the LBJ ranch to mollify him.

LBJ'S PALS

On August 28, 1972, for example, Freidin quoted McGovern aide Gary Hart as saying: "Hell, we all knew LBJ's background for cunning and fast-dealing. Here is his man John Connally and his man Leonard Marks for Nixon. As a former President who, LBJ couldn't say that he'd be a Democrat for Nixon. But all his close pals were."

However, Hart told us: "I don't recall making any statement of that sort. And I don't remember even meeting Mr. Freidin. I absolutely was not with the traveling party in late August as Freidin implies."

Ex-Senator Fred Harris, D-Okla., took exception to still another Freidin spy report. Suggested Harris: "I imagine that every time Freidin needed a payment, he simply sat down and dreamed up a report."

Two former aides of Sen. Ed Muskie, D-Me., Berl Bernhard and Dick Stewart, also denied statements that Freidin attributed to them. "That's just baloney," Bernhard told us. "I'd say Freidin's reports were apocryphal and, as a matter of common decency, he should return the money he received."

DOESN'T KNOW HIM

Stewart also swore he never spoke to Freidin. "I wouldn't recognize him if I fell over him," said the former Muskie

ECOLIBRIUM IS URGED TO HELP PRODUCTIVITY

Dr. Athelstan Spilhaus, a fellow at the Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars, Washington, D. C., writes in the magazine Petroleum Today that, "We need to balance our concern for ecology (the harmony of organisms with their environment) with a concern for economy (the management of affairs in order to maintain productiveness)."

He called this objective, ecolibrium. Noting that environmental aspirations "are excellent," Dr. Spilhaus asserted, "what is not excellent is over-simple attacks on industry and technology that often lead to unrealistically stringent controls. Such attacks and resulting controls can inhibit the industry, technology and productivity we need to give us the quality environment to which we aspire."

Pointing out that refineries are being banned from the coastlines of various states on the East Coast and elsewhere, Dr. Spilhaus notes that even when they are not banned, "environmental restrictions make it economically impossible for industry to go ahead with the urgent plan to supply the energy we need, not just for our ease, but to accomplish the environmental cleanup."

A new taxpayer sent the Internal Revenue Department 25 cents with a note saying he understood that he could pay his taxes by the quarter.

George V. Denny, Jr., founder and moderator of the Town Meeting of the Air had a little ball that he liked to display when the question of differences between people came up for discussion. Grasping the ball tightly in his hand, he would ask, "What color is it?" The person questioned would take a quick look and answer: "Black."

Denny then shook his head. "The part I see is white." He would give the ball a turn — the other half was white.

"We could never agree on the color of this ball," he pointed out, "unless you knew my point of view, and unless I realized you were looking at it from another point of view. Many disagreements could be settled if people would only look at both sides of the ball."

Men do not stumble over mountains, but over molehills.

Girls who can't decide on what kind of a career they want might be wise to go the secretarial route. Salaries are good and so is the demand for secretarial services.

According to the U. S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics, there are more than three times as many secretaries employed today as there were 20 years ago. In 1950 there were approximately

The Daily Standard, Sikeston, Mo.
Saturday, September 29, 1973

800,000 secretaries. Today there are 2.6 million.

The number of typists has increased also - from 275,000 to 636,000. However, the number of stenographers has declined some 63 per cent over a 20-year period. This reflects the need for higher secretarial skills which are demanded by the growing complexity of business, and it also points to the declining requirements for stenographers as dictating machines are used more widely.

Salaries have increased right along with the number of secretarial jobs, too. In metropolitan areas secretarial salaries have risen 46 per cent while the national Consumer Price Index has increased 34 per cent.

The future looks bright as well. Between 1970 and 1980 it is anticipated there will be 308,000 job openings nationally for secretaries, stenographers, and typists. These openings, which are two- and a-half times the number of openings in the next occupational category, will arise because of industrial growth and the need to replace workers leaving the labor force.

MORE WASTE AT HEALTH, EDUCATION AND WELFARE

For several years now, the Federal Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) has had more money to spend than any other department of the federal government, including the Department of Defense. Though many citizens are still unaware of this fact, or find it hard to believe because of all the propaganda they hear about defense spending, it is unquestionably true.

Recently, HEW's audit agency reported a new and appalling example of how HEW wastes the people's money. Its Office of Education recently made a grant of $2 million for development of a Spanish language equivalent of the well-known television series "Sesame Street."

Some might argue that the project itself was worthwhile, but no one could defend the manner in which the $2 million was used. More than half of it was spent in ways the auditors said should be "disallowed."

These included an astonishing $100,000 for life insurance policies for seven staff members and the greater part of $162,132 for restaurant and hotel bills, for example $465 for a "seminar dinner" in San Francisco of which $200 was spent on alcoholic drinks. Nearly $100,000 was paid to "consultants" either before the effective date of the grant or for the same services others had already been paid for. Furniture for staff offices was purchased for double the normal cost.

This kind of free-spending luxury by HEW bureaucrats and their friends should make it very clear who really benefits from many of the highly touted programs allegedly to help the underprivileged, the poor and minority groups. For bureaucrats and "consultants," there is money in poverty. HLH

Where's Secret Memo?

Sam Ervin's Committee Refuses Probe Of McGovern Forces' Fight for Jimmy Hoffa WASHINGTON-- In the final analysis, the political pathology of Sam Ervin's Senate Seven will prove they often saturated Dick Nixon with innuendos of criminal alliances-- such as secret deals with ex-convict Jimmy Hoffa-- and then with equal deliberation permitted the innuendos to become hard "fact."

"The Hoffa Affair" as the Watergate committee staffers call it, is a curious case in point. The insinuation was whipped up that the President of the U. S. secretly made a deal in 1971 with the imprisoned Hoffa (then still president of the Teamsters) for the political support of the 2.2 million member brotherhood. Jimmy would be endorsed.

So said chairman Sam Ervin's probers to any who would listen. They averred sorrowfully the other day they just didn't have the time and forces to investigate "the Hoffa Affair" and hold subsequent hearings "on the deal."

Small wonder. It would have proven that the McGovern forces, not Dick Nixon or the perpetually self-erasing presidential strategist Chuck Colson, led the fight for Hoffa's release.

Leading all the rest early in 1971 was none other than the United Auto Workers president Leonard Woodcock who, until the final hours of the July 1972 Democratic nominating convention, was runner-up to Sen. Tom Eagleton for the vice presidential nomination.

Woodcock and many of his auto union high command caucused and recaucused in Miami's Hotel Fontainebleau that convention week. He was in and out of George McGovern's Hotel Doral inner headquarters suite. He was championed hourly by the influential Mrs. McGovern. Hardly was he a member of the Committee for the Re-election of the President.

Yet, early in 1971, the UAW executive board met and backed a drive for Hoffa's release from Lewisburg Penitentiary. They gave Woodcock Godspeed to get superstar Hoffa's case to the White House.

Woodcock went, that year, right into the White House to plead with George Shultz personally for Jimmy's freedom. Shultz then ran the Office of Management and Budget and was (and is) Dick Nixon's account executive in charge of labor.

Woodcock and his second-in-command, UAW secretary-treasurer Emil Mazey, the veteran antiwar, anti-Nixon, self-avowed Socialist, called Hoffa a labor martyr. At the Teamsters convention in July 1971, Woodcock, in resounding oratorical form, shouted, "Jimmy Hoffa would have been paroled last April if his name had not been Jimmy Hoffa...and is being held because he's a political prisoner...I join in the hopes and prayers that he soon may be made free as he deserves to be."

Woodcock and Mazey, who fought Nixon in 1972 right down to the final hour of ballot time, said Hoffa was being treated with more harshness than the prisoner deserved.

There were other pro-Hoffa McGovernite labor leaders such as the St. Louis-based vice president, Harold Gibbons, one of the most active McGovern supporters. Gibbons and Hoffa have been a tall-short Damon and Pythias inside the Teamsters for 25 years. Gibbons, a pro-McGovern whirlwind throughout last year's campaign, was in the eye of the free-Hoffa hurricane the whole way.

Gibbons and the Auto Workers dovetailed their efforts. To the left of them were other labor forces working voluntary overtime to turn Hoffa into a one-man Sacco-Vanzetti cause.

Yet the freshets, known as Watergate counsel Sam Dash's staffers, leaked and leaked and last week left the impression they were forced to let a sordid Nixon-Hoffa story go by because they just were running out of time, money and manpower.

What actually had happened is exactly what occurred during the imprisonment of other labor leaders in the past. The incumbent successor in most cases has pleaded with Presidents or governors for clemency for the convicted predecessor. That's what Teamsters chief Frank (Fitz) Fitzsimmons did. It's tradition. The rank and file expects it, cheers it and forgets it.

Hoffa in prison, especially during presidential campaign years in the U. S. and inside the Teamsters, was an invitation to ulcers.

At one point Fitz, then acting Teamsters president, told Hoffa, in effect, "If you're going to run for (Teamsters) president you can get another boy, I'm quitting."

And President Nixon, fully aware that the Teamsters would endorse him for reelection, saw no reason to give the opposition the chance to charge him with keeping Hoffa a political prisoner. And since virtually no one inside labor objected, not even AFL-CIO president George Meany, Mr. Nixon freed him in December 1971.

But first there was an agreement with Hoffa. Chuck Colson wanted Jimmy to quit the nominal Teamsters presidency so Dick Nixon wouldn't be taking the endorsement of a union whose president was in prison. So a stipulation was written into the commutation-- Hoffa was to quit the entire labor movement, directly and indirectly, until March 1980.

Hoffa was told this by his lawyer. Hoffa agreed in advance to get out and stay out. And insiders know there is a memorandum to this effect. So Hoffa agreed to take his $1.7 million pension and go mow his Michigan estate's lawn or polish his posh condominium.

But Teamsters internal politics is not the issue for the moment. The significant issue is the right of the Ervin Senate Seven to refuse to probe the "Hoffa Affair" because they would disclose to the public that it was the McGovern forces which fought for freedom of the tough ex-convict Hoffa.

Or is anything pro-Nixon beyond the probe's pale?

Some Honest Help For the Married

By REV. DAVID POLING

The hot topic for the mass magazines is marriage. Plenty of dire predictions. Tons of statistics on divorce. Much handwringing over the pressure being put on the family. What is the future of the home in the midst of all this chaos? Again, clamor over the new role of women in the marriage contract and how the men will fare in the rearrangement of personal relationships.

Some experts put all the blame of a bad marriage on the lack of sexual prowess and technique. So the nation is engulfed with stacks of manuals to improve everything in the bedroom—except the people themselves. Since that has failed, even with films, slides, and illustrations, clinics have appeared to help the timid and the lame to improve on the sexual scene all over again. One national magazine reported on a wife's experience at one of these marriage/sex clinics. It was O.K., concluded our victim, but they were getting divorced, anyway. Boredom finally beat the bedroom.

For those who are serious and reaching out for some honest help to a faulty marriage (and that hits everyone at some point in their marital bliss) we heartily recommend the counsel and writings of Dr. James R. Hine of the University of Arizona. For nearly 30 years Dr. Hine has been helping those who are married or about to take the big step. His seven books include such titles as "Grounds for Marriage," "Alternative to Divorce," "Your Wedding Workbook" — and his latest, "Your Marriage, Analysis and Renewal." (All from Interstate Publishers, Danville, Ill.)

Since Dr. Hine has married nearly 1,000 couples—from University of Illinois, and now Arizona—most of his material is battle-tested. Many of those married attended Dr. Hine's classes while in school and continued to stay in touch with their favorite professor. Many of these couples continue to report on the progress of their marriages, filling out new questionnaires and writing frankly about their victories and defeats.

Readers who want to salvage a marriage or improve a good one should have a copy of "Your Marriage." This 90-page booklet, which can be used by a couple or with a group of married couples, deals directly with all the stress and heartache and joy of marriage. Says Hine at the beginning, "Several hundred married couples were asked to state the most important factor affecting good relationships in their marriage. The majority of them replied: The ability to talk things over."

At the end of one chapter, Hine says simply, "Marriage should be a situation in which, as it has been said, our sorrows are halved and our joys are doubled."

Hine lists 10 factors that make for a successful marriage, again material gleaned from hundreds of couples that are active on his mailing list. One that I can remember is Acceptance: "The appropriate time to use strong critical faculties towards the other person is before marriage. Once the decision has been made, the critical stance should give way to acceptance."

GOOD NEWS FOR SINNERS

If there is anything needed in this world today it is "good news for sinners". Unfortunately, we have the sinners, but we don't have enough good news.

Paul's writings will provide our background study for the next five lessons. Here he is writing his "Gospel of Salvation from Corinth about 57 A.D."

These lessons will concern the additional promises given to men through Christ. In addition to the creation by God, Paul reminds us of the new insight seen in the death and resurrection of Christ.

This letter to the Romans is probably the most influential of Paul's writings. He is not writing in an attempt to settle an internal dispute, as seen in Corinthians. He was not the founder of this church so had no special obligations to aid the members.

Paul hoped to visit this church and this letter served as an introduction. James Reapsome points out this letter concerned the establishment of one's own righteousness versus accepting righteousness as a gift from God.

"Paul's converts were being hounded by Judaizers who tried to place them under the yoke of the Mosaic law," Reapsome notes. "This would rob them of their freedom in Christ and undercut the distinctive truths of Christianity. Salvation was either by faith, or by works of the law, but it could not be by both."

One must remember that "gospel" means good news. Although it tells of the death and resurrection of Christ, it does offer us deliverance from our sins.

Paul was confident that the gospel is based on God's promises to us. The message offers us divine power for human inability to achieve salvation.

In reading the gospel one must believe that God exists and He is righteous, offering the same terms to all men. God requires us to be righteous and refrain from sin. God's good news is that although we have sinned we still have the opportunity to regain our standing in His eyes.

Paul continues through Romans to write with simplicity and purity. Yet he warns that too often we make the gospel complex. He continues to repeat his belief that God's power accompanies faith in Christ rather than in the number of good deeds we perform.

Idolatry, the worship of a substitute God, is another danger that leads to more breakdown. Paul warned against this, noting our tendency even today to serve man rather than his Creator.

Martin Luther reminded us that "trust in one's own righteousness, works and merits, and putting confidence in riches and power" can become idolatry.

Fulton Sheen added that, the modern idol maker goes not to the forest but to the laboratory, a place where the help of scientific concepts he moulds the kind of God he will adore."

Modern church leaders face more competition for the attention of Christians. The gospel gets lost in our cluttered market place of ideas. Paul found it more difficult to reach the "educated" persons than to convince others of the good news.

Nevertheless, the gospel is full of authority and capable of understanding by everyone desiring salvation. Through the gospel we can visualize Christ speaking to the multitudes, healing the sick, and dying on the cross.

Daniel Webster said the day before his death that, "My heart has always assured me that the Gospel of Jesus Christ must be Divine Reality."

There are some problems in following all of Paul's words in Romans. One might visualize Paul's enthusiasm for his message and in such excitement he might have omitted some of his ideas.

The gospel reminds us of why we worship God and accept Christ as our savior. It notes how God expresses His wrath toward wickedness.

The gospel serves as a map for each of us to plot our journey through this life and the one to follow.

Prayer amendment endorsed

WASHINGTON — A proposed constitutional amendment to allow voluntary prayer in public schools won strong support from religious and patriotic leaders who testified Monday before the Senate constitutional amendments subcommittee.

"Let the American people themselves decide the issue of religion in the public school," urged Rev. Robert Howes, a Roman Catholic priest from Worcester, Mass., who is national coordinator of the Citizens for Public Prayer.

The subcommittee is considering an amendment proposed by Sen. Richard Schweiker (R-Pa.) which would specify that the Constitution does not deny "the right of persons lawfully assembled in any public building to participate in voluntary prayer."

Howes' testimony was buttressed by Charles Mattingly, a deputy director of the American Legion, who said his 3.7-million-member organization could not support "any public authority prescribing the form or content of any prayer but endorses the right of any person to voluntarily participate in prayer."

Mrs. Bennett Miller of Washington, coordinator of the National Back to God Movement, a pro-prayer amendment group, said her organization "demands the privilege freely to recognize a Supreme Being at an appropriate time, place and occasion in the public classroom."

DALLAS (AP) — Dr. Ben C. Hobgood, who headed the University Libre de Congo at Kikangani, formerly Stanleyville, has been named to the new post of director of personnel at Southern Methodist University here.

THE BIBLE
102. The Death of Sisera

Once Barak and Deborah had routed Sisera's forces, Sisera fled on foot to the tent of Jael, the wife of Heber the Kenite, for there was peace between the king of Hazor and the house of Heber the Kenite.

"And Jael went out to meet Sisera, and said unto him, Turn in, my Lord, turn in to me; fear not: and when he had turned in unto her into the tent, she covered him with a mantle." (Judges 4:18)

Sisera asked her for water, and Jael gave him milk to drink, and then covered him. "Again he said unto her, Stand in the door of the tent, and it shall be, when any man doth come and inquire of thee, and say, Is there any man here? that thou shalt say, No." (Judges 4:20)

Then Jael took a sharp tent peg and a hammer, and creeping up to Sisera as he slept, she drove the peg through his temples and into the ground. Sisera, being fast asleep from weariness, died quickly. When Barak came searching for Sisera, Jael went out and urged Barak to follow her. She then brought him into her tent and showed him the body of Sisera. "So God subdued on that day Jabin the king of Canaan before the children of Israel." (Judges 4:23)

MALACHI: WHEN RELIGION GOES STALE

Hitchhikers warned

Dear Ann Landers: What I have to say will probably give you the chills. It did me. A group of kids (all of us between 16 and 18 years of age) were sitting around about three months ago talking about your column on hitchhiking. You spoke out against picking up hitchhikers and you also mentioned the dangers of getting into a car with a stranger.

I was the only one in the crowd who agreed with you. The girl who was most vocal in her disagreement said she'd been hitchhiking since she was 13 and had never had any trouble. According to her, if a girl doesn't invite "trouble" she doesn't get any.

Maybe you read about her in the paper a few days ago. She was hitchhiking in Indiana and was found in a cornfield by a passing motorist. At this moment that poor kid is in serious condition in an Indianapolis hospital. She had been raped and beaten, all her teeth and part of her gums were knocked out. The police said the person who picked her up must have been a sadist.

No point in saying, "I told you so," but I remember how alone (almost foolish) I felt in that crowd when I said I thought Ann Landers was right.

Say it again. Maybe this time more people will listen. -- A Hoosier Who Appreciates You

Dear H.: Here's your letter and may thanks for writing it. I don't need to say it again. You did.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a bit of a museum piece -- same vintage as you. It's with a sense of joy that I see ballroom dancing is coming back. Will you answer a question, please? When doing the fox trot with a refined, middle-aged woman, how close should I hold her? This is no joke. I need an answer. -- Big Band Era Bert

Dear Bert: Hold her close enough so you'll know you're dancing with a woman, but leave enough space so SHE'LL know you think she's a lady.

Dear Ann Landers: I've done some research and found out that you are a fake. There are, in fact, dozens of "Ann Landers" around the country. Local newspapers answer the letters they find interesting and tear up the rest. The people who write to you for advice are really getting their answers from a pseudo Ann Landers who lives in their town and works on the local newspaper. Those poor fools are thrilled when they receive their advice because they think it's from you.

I am an employee of a large newspaper and can prove that what I have said is true. Try to get out of this one. -- Hip From Hicksville

Dear Hick: The Ann Landers column that you read in Hicksville is syndicated to nearly 800 newspapers around the world. There is only one Ann Landers and that's me -- here in Chicago.

No newspaper has the right to open a letter addressed to Ann Landers, much less send out advice over my signature.

You say you can prove that what you have said is true. That's a very strong statement and I challenge you to produce the evidence. You didn't sign your letter nor did you send an address, but I'm printing it, not only for your eyes, but the eyes of 54 million readers. Now put up or shut up. Try and get out of this one. -- Ann Landers

Shains to celebrate anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Shain, 507 Harris, St., will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary Sunday with an open house at the Security Federal Savings and Loan Association community room from 2 to 5 p.m. The event will be hosted by the couple's children. Shain and his wife, the former Violet Hitt, both lifelong residents of Sikeston, were married Sept. 30, 1923 in Sikeston by Judge J. C. Lescher.

Sewing fair will be held Oct. 9-10

It is not difficult to become skillful at sewing. Those who want to sew and are willing to try, can learn and become more interesting and happier people through making attractive things for themselves and for their home.

Sewing is an art that has been passed down from the time of the primitive woman who used crude tools to the homemakers of today who use the most precision tools. Sewing ideas and techniques are still being passed on by homemakers skillful in the art.

A sewing fair is planned Oct. 9 and 10 at the Sikeston Kingsway Plaza Mall. The fair is being held in order that homemakers with sewing skill and techniques may share them with others wishing to learn more about sewing.

Plans have been made to have 14 learning booths. These will be located through the mall. Homemakers will be stationed in each booth to discuss and show topics such as pattern and fabric selection, selecting sewing tools, pressing equipment, etc.

If you would like to see and discuss sewing skills and problems with others, come to the fair.

The booths will be open each afternoon from 1 to 4 p.m.

A special event has been planned for each evening. On Oct. 9 at 7 p.m. there will be a program, "Pants Fits To Fashion," and on Oct. 10 at 7 p.m. the program will be "Fabric & Tailoring Tips."

The accident occurred when the steering mechanism on a southbound pickup truck driven by Jerry L. Skaggs, 20, of Canalou failed and the truck ran off the road and struck a tree.

Skaggs received a leg and chest injury. His wife Sandra, 18, suffered leg and left hip injuries and his brother, Larry Skaggs, 16, sustained a right hip injury. All three were taken to Dunklin County Memorial Hospital in Kennett.

Charleston highly favored

The newspaper shortage has been slowly clamping down upon the room on the sports page... and today it has really taken its toll.

So to conserve space in hopes of getting the story about Reggie Cleveland's one-hit shutout of the Chicago Cubs into today's edition, we'll cut this column short.

First of all, we'd like to salute our fellow sportswriter, Dianne Ezzell, and area fan Danny Summerfield on their near perfect score in last week's guessing game. The pair missed only one. Stuart McGhee, Magnificent Mike Gentry and Tony Ford missed two while your's truly, Bill Harrison, Eddie Smart, the Shadow (Scott Marlin), and Jerry Gentry had three misses while John Greer missed four and Bobby Gentry five. These same people have ventured guesses this week along with David Ziegenhorn.

Here's the way this week's guesses have turned out.

Sikeston vs. Charleston -- The Blue Jays are 8-4 favorites to increase the Bulldogs losing streak and maintain their own winning ways. But it was a close call ... 21-13. I'll take that, but revert the score in the Bulldogs favor.

Jackson is a unanimous pick to bomb Kennett while Poplar Bluff, Doniphan, Scott City and Dexter are unanimous picks to make easy work of their opponents. Shutouts should prevail.

Cape Central is a 8-4 favorite over Springfield Parkview and have the vote of the old pro ... It should end something like 21-13.

Portageville and Hayti are 10-2 picks to capture their wins over Chaffee and East Prairie respectively. But don't count out the underdogs, they could record the surprises.

Piggott, Ark. is a 8-4 pick over the Malden Green Wave. It should be a real battle and don't be surprised if MHS snaps out of their losing skid.

Our former employee, D.Z. has taken the Rebels of Ole Miss to snap out of their losing ways against Southern Miss this weekend, 27-17. He says the coaching change will give the Rebels the boost needed. John Vaight is the Rebs head mentor. It should be an interesting contest and we hope David's alma-mater records the win.

That's it from here today, join with us next week in our guessing game ... See ya at the game.

The Kansas City Royals and Texas Rangers of the American League will match their Rookie hurlers tonight when 20-year-old Mark "Country" Littell of Gideon, Mo., faces the Rangers 18-year-old flash, David Clyde at Texas.

Littell has a 1-2 record with the Royals after a brief stint with the KC club in July. Clyde is 4-7.

CHICAGO (AP)—The 74th Women's Western Amateur Golf Championship in 1974 will be played at the Country Club of Indianapolis Ind. July 8-13, the sponsoring Women's Western Golf Association announced Thursday.

The tourney previously had been set for the Silverd Country Club at Napa, Calif., which now will be considered for another year.

Another WPGA tourney, the 48th Women's Western Junior, in 1974 will be played at Sands Point Golf Club, in Seattle, Wash., Aug. 19-23.

SAN JUAN, P. R. (AP)—About 190 amateur golfers from the U. S., Canada, the Virgin Islands, Latin America and Puerto Rico have registered for the 16th annual Amateur of the America golf tournament to be held at the Dorado Beach Hotel, it was announced today by a hotel spokesman.

The tournament is scheduled to start Oct. 1, according to the announcement. Defending champion Carl James of Puerto Rico, is one of the participants.

HOT SPRINGS (AP)—A field of 35 professionals headed by eight-time winner Sam Snead of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., competes over the Cascades and Lower Cascades courses Saturday and Sunday in the 21st annual Homestead pro-amateur invitational golf tournament.

CHARLESTON — The Sikeston Bulldogs, winless in two outings this season, face the toughest CHS Blue Jay gridiron team since the era's of Herb Marshall and Charlie Babb tonight when the two arch-rivals collide in their annual Northern Division bout. Kickoff is 7:30 p.m.

CHS hasn't defeated the Bulldogs since the 1971 version of the Blue Jays turned the trick at Sikeston's own Public School Stadium, 7-0.

Tonight the SHS Bulldogs will be facing one of the outstanding defensive teams in the Northern Conference when they tangle with the Charleston Blue Jays who haven't allowed a single point in their two appearances this season. Their victories include a 21-0 win over Portageville and a 20-0 triumph over St. Vincent.

Head CHS Coach Joe Black told the Daily Standard that the Blue Jay lineup would remain the same as their last game. As for injuries, he said J. J. Black was still troubled by an ankle injury he received during their first game against Portageville. Offensively, the Blue Jays are tough too. J. J. Black is the leading scorer in Southeast Missouri with 27 points. Kent Sutherland, has 12 points in the first two games for the Blue Jays.

The Sikeston Bulldogs have an impressive defense too, although they have allowed 27 points to be scored against them this season. The Bulldogs will be looking for their first victory this year after losses to Farmington (13-7) and Perryville (14-6). Head Coach Smith said the Bulldog lineup wouldn't change any from the last game against Perryville.

FCA at CHS

CHARLESTON—The professional football fans of the area have probably heard of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes. Not surprisingly, there is now a FCA in Southeast Missouri High School football.

The Charleston Blue Jays started a Fellowship of Christian Athletes in August and it is growing strong. The players meet every Wednesday night at 9:00 to discuss problems, whether personal, scholastic, or football. They talk about what they share with Jesus Christ and how He has helped their lives.

The team's elected officers are Junior Delay as Captain, J. J. Black, the Co-Captain, Kent Sutherland is the Secretary and Rick Toon is the Program Chairman. The team chaplain is James

Young. "It is not intended to psyche out the other team, it's just that the boys are sincere and want to spread the word of God," said Joe Black about his players practice of saying 'Jesus loves me' before each ball snap. "One player told the referee on the kick off that he was going to kick this one for God and he booted it out of the end zone."

Coach Black said that the team did not think that prayer alone was going to carry them. Hard work plus prayer are what makes football players, or any one, successful.

Any school interested in forming their own Fellowship should not hesitate to call Coach Black. "I will go anywhere to help form a new FCA," he stated.

Freshmen win

The Sikeston Freshmen defeated the Perryville Pirate 9th graders last night at Public School stadium 22-0. The coaches were "very satisfied" with the win.

The Bulldogs featured a strong defensive unit, which was evidenced by the recovery of a blocked punt in the end zone for a touchdown. Greg Griffen pounced on the ball for the score. The other touchdowns were scored by Steve Stricker and Ron Shell, on a quarterback sneak. Shell was also credited with two, two point conversions.

The SHS junior varsity battled the Pirates JV to a scoreless deadlock Wednesday night at Perryville to run their record to 0-1-1.
